Technology has leaped into a new era over the past few decades thus making our daily lives easier in every possible way, especially transportation. With the advancements in the aerial transportation technologies, plane travel has become extremely cheap, common and comfortable, so people fovor planes over trains, buses and ships in domestic travel. In turkey, the advancements in accessibility, and time efficiency of plane croweling have led to an exponential increase in domestic plane travel.

To begin with, accessibility was the main problem for plane travel since there were only a few airports, located in large cities and the costs were too high. Once airports became common and the prices dropped to a certain level through the post decades, flights have become as common as bus rides, past decades, flights have become as common as bus rides. Moreover, Most cities have provided public transportation to the airports so that possengers can easily and cost efficiently get to dreir flights. To conclude, as plane travel gets cheaper, more common and accessible, its target customers have relocated from only the rish to every socio economic class, causing a dromatic increase in preference.

Moreover, time has become more and more valuable in the hiustle of our daily lives. Most people have only a few weeks of vacation a year so wasting days on the road appears frustrating. Plane travel saves hours of traffic for working people for instance, anywhere in Turkey can be traveled in a couple of hours by plane, sitting on a comfortable seat watching movies. It is relatable that williams of people choose plane travel over any other way since it buys them time with a great discount. Consequently, one of the main reasons for the significant increase in domestic flights is that it offers people what 21st century steals from them time.

considering all the aspects, plane travel has become the first and best option in every foshion since it is cheap, easy to access, and time efficient. Although there are many other various reasons, such as trust and safety measures, the smaller the world gets, the e more our currency becomes time instead of money which has already more our currency becomes time instead of money which has already merged into one another. Everyone sacrifices time for money or vice werse, so why not save both just by preferring planes over yerse, so why not save both just by preferring planes over

Question: Why is travelling by plane so popular?

Introduction

In the introduction paragraph, student gives appropriate background information and effective thesis statement with two clear causes by using advanced grammatical structures such as present perfect and its time markers and a variety of adjectives and adverbs as well as advanced vocabulary such as 'leap into', 'exponential', 'with the advancements', 'lead to' and 'increase in'.

1st body paragraph

In the first body paragraph, student gives two supporting ideas and their details with examples related to the first cause 'accessibility'. Having more airports and provision of public transportation are given as the supporting ideas for accesibility. Use of advanced grammar structures like 'once', 'as', 'so that' and the reduced relative clause 'located in large cities' and the other one referring to the whole sentence ', causing a dramatic increase in preference' have led to a strong body paragraph.

2nd body paragraph

In the second body paragraph, student gives a detailed explanation of the second cause 'time'. Use of complex sentences like 'Consequently, one of the main reasons for the significant increase in domestic flights is that it offers people what 21st century steals from them; time' and advanced vocabulary have led to a strong body paragraph. There are some minor mistakes like lack of comma before so and spelling mistake like 'traveled', which accounts for missing one point.

Conclusion paragraph

This paragraph has a strong summary and final comment. Two causes in the thesis statement are restated clearly. Correct use of double comparatives 'the smaller the world gets, the more ...' and the conjunctions 'since', 'although' has contributed a lot to this strong conclusion paragraph.
